Part I. Eight Groups of Documents on Marriage

See pp. 97–100 above.

If not otherwise indicated, the documents analyzed were written in Fustat (Old Cairo).

Sums are in dinars (d). (For its purchasing power see Preface.) The immediate and delayed installments of the marriage gift of the husband (designated A and B) and their total are indicated thus:  $50 + 100 = 150$ . Sums in parentheses are arrived at by calculation. Thus,  $50 (+ 100) = 150$  means that in the document analyzed only the numbers 50 and 150 are visible. Where only one of the two installments or only the total is preserved, the fact is indicated thus: A:50. B:100. Total:150.

“Incomplete” means that one or several leaves of a record book are missing; “frag.” signifies that the paper or vellum on which the document is written is only partly preserved; “not completed” means that the writer of the MS did not finish.

M.c., marriage contract (ketubba); m., marriage; GT, grand total.

B	payment at the termination of the marriage
d	divorcée
D	dowry
dr	divorcée remarried to original husband
fb	father of bride noted as dead
fg	father of groom noted as dead. (The absence of a mark does not prove that the father was alive. In lists of trousseaux and other marriage documents copied in the record books the clerks often did not care to enter this detail.)
GT	grand total of marriage gift and dowry
sm	second marriage (widowed or divorced)
T	total of A and B
w	widow

All numbers designate dinars; 1 dinar = approximately 40 dirhems.

When not otherwise indicated, the document was issued at Fustat, or the relevant detail is lost.

Bodleian manuscripts, usually written, e.g., Bodl. MS Heb. d 66 (Cat. 2878), f. 47, appear thus: d 66 (2878), f. 47.

1 + 1 = 2 means that the MS notes A, B, and T.

1 + 1 indicates that the MS mentions solely A and B.

As a rule, the marriage contracts contain  $A + B = T$ , whereas the records or drafts about a marriage note solely A and B.

SUMMARY

The demarcation lines between the various socioeconomic groups were drawn not only in accordance with the amount of the marriage gift but also in consideration of other circumstances, such as the status of the spouses and, especially, the value of the dowry or of gifts of houses or parts of them.

Since the poor had more opportunity to leave their family papers with the courts, and hence in the Geniza, than those better off, the actual economic situation of the community might have been somewhat better than indicated by the analysis. But their business letters and contracts (Med. Soc., I. 214-217) indicate that there could not have been much difference between the picture emerging from the Geniza and reality.

The lists and the summary are a first attempt at arranging the vast Geniza material on the economic aspects of marriage in a semblance of statistics. The pronounced stratification of the society emerging from them is remarkable. Naturally, no claim to completeness is made. The multifarious realities of the economics of marriage must be studied in the light of the entire material presented in this volume.
